OBJECTIVES

Khatra Adibasi Mahavidyalaya is situated at southern part of the district of Bankura. This area falls under ST Legislative and Parliamentary Constituency. Being located at the margins, there is a predominant influence of superstitious beliefs in this area. For instance, they have more faith in black magic and indigenous craft like treatment by local 'ojha's or 'gunin' than modern scientific medical cure and assistance.

Furthermore, a shocking survey has revealed that yet almost seventy percent of local people attend nature's call in open areas rather than going to toilets. They are not aware of its dire consequences.

Therefore, the sole purpose of this seminar is to contest such superstitious beliefs and spread awareness among the students about the necessity of proper scientific medical treatment and hygiene.

We are confident that participant students of this seminar would in turn promote such awareness in their locality and neighbourhood and changing course of the present environment which effect on our life socially and economically. Even some occupational diseases creat hazards in cur life.

Today our student is facing an alarming rise of violence against women in form of molestation and eve teasing. We would like to give a first-hand knowledge to the girl students of our college about the skills of self-defence through Karate or Judo.

Finally, the trend of suicide among students issuing out of lack of job opportunities and poor results is an issue of concern which we would like to address in this seminar by trying to motivate students about alternative and vocational career opportunities.

GUIDELINES FOR SUBMISSION OF PAPERS
